HB 200

Here are some names used by politicians to sell school vouchers to the public:

1. Opportunity Scholarships: A voucher that can be used for a wide range of items connected to attending a private and/or religious school.
2. Parental Choice Scholarships: Functions like opportunity scholarships. The American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC), which recently announced plans to up its game promoting vouchers, is peddling its own model of this type of voucher legislation.
3. Tuition Tax Credits: Provides a state or federal income tax credit for private and/or religious school expenses, including tuition.
4. Education Savings Accounts: An investment account, similar to a Roth IRA, where money for private-school expenses can be saved. Education savings accounts generally benefit families who can already afford to send their kids to private school.
5. Charitable Tax Credit: Allows individuals and businesses to take a tax credit for donating to private, non-profit organizations that provide private school vouchers.

Whether they are so-called opportunity scholarships, tuition tax credits/deductions, or education savings accounts, the money to cover all of these voucher programs has to come from somewhere, and itâ€™s usually taken away from the vast majority of students attending our traditional public schools.

Please say NO to school voucher schemes like HB 200.

Why Arkansas' Medicaid Rollback Could Be a Model for Expansion States

Medicaid expansion has placed a severe financial strain on the budgets of the states that chose to expand under the provisions instituted by the Affordable Care Act (ACA). In several states, lawmakers are offering proposals to roll back or repeal their Medicaid expansion under new plans designed to improve the flawed program. Medicaid expansion, at its core, builds on a failing model in which the federal government dictates multiple aspects of the government insurance plan, thereby losing the beneficial aspects of market competition.

Arkansas is the originator of private-option model that many states used to expand their Medicaid programs. With its Medicaid expansion failing to contain rapidly increasing costs, Arkansas will soon become the first state to enact reforms significantly scaling back Medicaid expansion under the ACA.

Under Arkansas' "premium assistance" model, which was passed in 2013, an estimated 250,000 new enrollees were added to the state's Medicaid rolls. These new enrollees are able to purchase private insurance from the state's Obamacare health insurance exchange, receiving a premium-support payment to purchase the insurance. Despite the private-market veneer, Arkansas' program maintained many of the most problematic aspects of the state's failed Medicaid system and has led to increased costs.

Arkansas legislators recently passed a bill that shrinks eligibility for the expanded Medicaid program from 138 percent of the federal poverty level (FPL) down to 100 percent FPL. The reduced eligibility standards is expected to reduce state Medicaid rolls by 60,000 people, or approximately 20 percent of the total Medicaid-expansion enrollment. In a statement on Arkansas' Medicaid rollback, Americans for Prosperity argued this "is a good step towards bringing the program closer to its originally intended beneficiary group, and ensuring that limited state and federal dollars are flowing to the Arkansans who need it most."

In its initial expansion, Arkansas chose not to impose premiums on beneficiaries with incomes under the poverty level, and despite the fact it had obtained a waiver from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services to do otherwise, it never collected premiums from people with incomes from 100-138 percent of the federal poverty level.

The new law also requires state leaders to submit requests to the federal government for a waiver that would allow the state to require work requirements for able-bodied individuals seeking to enroll. The Trump administration has suggested it supports similar reforms in past, which means the waiver will likely be approved. The new work requirements that would be included with the rollback use methods that proved to be very effective when they were included in the welfare reforms of the 1990s; in a study examining poverty after the 1990's welfare reforms, the Manhattan Institute found the inclusion of work requirements led to substantial reductions in poverty nationwide.

Amongst the most significant problems with Medicaid expansion is a lack of clear funding in the future. The federal government has promised to cover 100 percent of the costs of newly eligible enrollees until 2017, but the matching rate declines over time, so states will eventually have to find other ways to pay for the newly eligible population.

In a report from the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), an examination of Medicaid's finances found the average cost of ACA's Medicaid expansion enrollees was nearly 50 percent higher in fiscal year 2015 than the levels HHS had projected the previous year. In 2015, Medicaid expansion enrollees cost an average of $6,366; HHS had predicted it would be $4,281.

Medicaid expansion is already straining and stretching Arkansas' budget and creating serious issues related to waste and fraud. According to The Washington Post, the initial projections by an actuary firm hired by Arkansas to review the plan found the premium-support model would cost federal taxpayers $18.9 billion over the next 10 years and an additional $1.59 billion from Arkansas taxpayers.

Arkansas is not the only state to consider rolling back its Medicaid expansion. Legislators in Ohio and Oregon are considering reforms similar to what was passed in Arkansas.

States that have not expanded should avoid doing so, but for states that have expanded Medicaid, Arkansas' reforms could be a good model for limiting the growth and cost of Medicaid expansion. Other states should take advantage of the waiver process while there is an administration in the White House willing to approve reform-minded Medicaid changes.

You can find additional documents examining Medicaid reform in greater detail here.

Speaker Announcement

Secretary Betsy DeVos

Join ALEC and Secretary DeVos as she speaks to what is being done for Education issues at the state and federal levels.
This will be a highlight of the meeting!

Workshop: "The State of Oil and Natural Gas Regulations: Local Governments vs. State Agencies & How the Industry Can Best Balance Transparency and Safety"

Conversations around oil and gas have drastically shifted over recent years. Many argue that local governments are best suited to handle oil and gas regulations, while others would argue State agencies are best equipped to do so.

Come and be a part of the conversation!

Policy Spotlight

The ALEC Health and Human Services Task Force is excited to announce Grace-Marie Turner and Avik Roy will be joining the task force to speak on the state of Health Reform in the states.

Turner has been instrumental in developing and promoting ideas for reform to transfer power over health care decisions to doctors and patients. She speaks and writes extensively about incentives to promote a more competitive, patient-centered marketplace in the health sector.

Roy is the author of How Medicaid Fails the Poor and Transcending Obamacare: A Patient-Centered Plan for Near-Universal Coverage and Permanent Fiscal Solvency. He serves on the advisory board of the National Institute for Health Care Management and co-chaired the Fixing Veterans Health Care Policy Taskforce.

This is a great opportunity to hear from two major players in the health care reform fight.

Constellation Schools - parents 'sign up' for Parents for Charter Schools

Constellation Schools is a premier management company of 21 outstanding public charter schools, all located within the greater Cleveland area. More parents want to defend their child's education and protect the public charter school that they chose. That's why they are signing up for - Parents for Charter Schools.

www.parents-charters.org

Lorain Community parents - Ms. Turner and Ms. Brown

Elyria Community parents - Ms. Janus, Ms. Hillbery and Mr. Wall

Each parent told their story about why they chose their Constellation School and why they feel passionate about their charter school. And they all gave the same reasons:

- * They love the small class sizes
- * The principal knows the names of every student
- * Their charter school offers a safe environment for their child
- * They love that parents are welcome in their charter school
- * They truly appreciate the character development that their charter school offers
- * Their child is excelling and are so happy at their charter school

Rebecca L. Keeney, Executive Director of Constellation Schools said, "All of us are so pleased that our parents are engaging with this new parent organization. We know that parents are the core of our charter schools and their voice can be a powerful force for their child's education."

Parents for Charter Schools Welcomes Constellation Schools Parents!

Medicaid Premiums Likely to Result in Loss of Coverage

Under the Senate Substitute for HB 49 several hundred thousand Medicaid enrollees will be required to pay a monthly fee to maintain their Medicaid benefits, as part of the Personal Responsibility Initiative, if approved by the Secretary of the Federal Health and Human Services Department.

Recent data from the State of Indiana's Healthy Indiana Plan (HIP), which requires monthly payments, suggests that a monthly fee does act as a barrier to eligible individuals from maintaining their Medicaid coverage. Indiana initiated its HIP as a two-tiered system where individuals who paid a premium could secure a more comprehensive benefit package, while others were covered with a basic plan and no premium. The Lewin Group study reflects HIP data for the period February 1, 2015 through December 1, 2016 and was submitted a report on March 31, 2017. <http://bit.ly/2pxdnf8>

According to the Lewin Group's study, 57,189 unique Indiana Medicaid members disenrolled or were not enrolled due to non-payment of their monthly premium, representing 29 percent of individuals who could be disenrolled or not enrolled due to non-payment during the timeframe. What is equally or more troubling is that during the study period there were 590,315 individuals eligible for the Healthy Indiana Medicaid program (HIP) who were ever eligible to make a payment into their "Power" account (PAC). Of that group 55% failed to make the initial premium payment, or missed a premium payment. The rate of non-payment was higher among individuals with incomes at or below 100% of the FPL.

Sixty-one percent of those who left Indiana's program after not paying stated that an inability to afford coverage, or the confusion about payment processes, resulted in their non-payment. For those who never initially enrolled in the program due to non-payments, 44% cited affordability or process confusion as a detriment to accessing Medicaid coverage. Clearly, the premium requirement influenced Medicaid enrollees' ability to access care in Indiana. Ohio Consumers for Health Coverage encourages lawmakers to consider the downstream impacts associated with at-risk populations not receiving necessary medical care.

Researchers have also analyzed other state attempts to implement Medicaid premiums. Oregon expanded Medicaid through a Section 1115 Waiver in December 1995 and required premiums from eligible populations. Researchers found that the likelihood of an eligible individual to re-apply for Medicaid after losing coverage fell by around 40% after premium requirements went into effect. Other researchers who analyzed past plans in Minnesota, Hawaii, and Washington found that an increase in out-of-pocket premiums resulted in a decrease in eligible population participation.

In summary, we urge lawmakers to consider the coverage impact associated with Medicaid premium requirements. Past research and current analyses highlight the loss of coverage resulting from Medicaid premium requirements.

Subject: Increase Arts Funding!

Dear Representative Smith,

Thank you for your support of public funding for the arts. As you consider final changes to the budget in conference committee, I urge you to support arts and culture in Ohio by providing additional funding to the Ohio Arts Council. The arts sector plays a central role in economic development and job creation in our state. In Ohio, the creative industries support nearly 231,000 jobs and contribute almost $32 billion to the state's economy. The arts attract new businesses and skilled workers, draw tourists and services to support them, create and retain jobs, and produce tax revenue- something our state could use right now. The arts generate approximately $3.4 billion in tax revenues annually, and this number reinforces what we've always known: The arts mean economic growth for Ohio.

Are you aware that the arts are the fifth largest industry in the United States and generate tax dollars to the federal, state, and local treasuries, in excess of the amounts allocated to the NEA by the federal government or amounts that the state of Ohio sets aside for the arts?

It is also important to know that the arts are invaluable to education, helping to raise test scores for students. The arts are vital to our health, both mental and physical. Music performed before and/or after surgery statistically shortens the length of a hospital stay and patients recuperate faster. When workers are involved in the arts, listening or viewing, business knows that theft in the workplace diminishes. Amazing!

Music and art speak an international language, understood by all, and creating a bond among diverse peoples. While language and heritage may separate us, music and art brings us together.

Please support increased funding for the Ohio Arts Council because an investment in the arts is an investment in the people of Ohio!

Sincerely,

Karen Ferren

Subject: Resident Educator Program

Representative Smith,

My name is Deb Tully. I am the Director of Professional Issues for the Ohio Federation of Teachers. I am writing to respectfully urge you to maintain the Resident Educator Program (RE) and Resident Educator Summative Assessment (RESA).

While I know there are many complaints about the program as being too cumbersome, we have been working with the ODE and Educopia to streamline the program to make it align more fully with the natural teaching process as well as streamline the RESA. This year the changes made to the RESA were due to be unrolled and these changes have not yet been tested though those RE program coordinators, former REs, and other were pleased with the changes made.

It is critical to maintain the RE given that we are constantly discussing how to recruit and retain quality teachers. The research all says that the best way to retain teachers is to support them in their early years of teaching. The RE does just that through the mentoring it provides. The RESA is an assessment like the BAR or Medical Boards or any other professional organization's assessment to assure properly prepared candidates enter the profession.

Addressing the real problem, however is critical. Currently there is a lack of time given to teachers in a school day to fully engage in the program and the lack of resources for providing quality mentors. To deal with all of the issues that have been mentioned OFT advocates for the RE and RESA to be referred to the Educator Standards Board (ESB) for study and recommendations to assure the program and assessment align with OTES and do not duplicate tasks as well as to determine any changes necessary to allow the program and assessment to blend with what teachers must accomplish and learn in their initial years of teaching. This support can only enhance the ability of new teachers to learn their craft and better serve their students. If you have questions or would like to discuss this further, don't hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Deb Tully

Subject: Protect undocumented workers who are hurt on the job

Roseann Duchon
4701 Ivernness Drive
Columbus, OH 43228-4590

June 26, 2017

Ryan Smith (R)

Rep. Smith (R):

I am writing to urge you not to amend House Bill 49, currently in conference committee, to include language excluding workers' compensation benefits for undocumented workers.

Denying workers' compensation benefits for any worker makes labor environments less safe and puts everyone at risk. This is especially true for undocumented workers who find employment in some of the most dangerous workplaces. Allowing an injured worker to file a claim protects them and their families if they are hurt on the job and holds their employers accountable for work hazards. But if undocumented workers are denied an opportunity to file injury claims, it gives license to unscrupulous companies to knowingly hire them and keep unsafe working conditions. And speaking of work, these Right to Work laws are nothing but ways for an employer to exploit workers. STOP ALREADY!

Again, I urge you to not amend HB 49 to deny key workplace protections for undocumented immigrants. Stand with our immigrant communities, and let them know you care.

Sincerely,

Roseann Duchon

The Working Group will be led by leaders on the public policies recently implemented in this space, Wisconsin Representative John Nygren and Maryland Senator Michael Hough.

Limiting Taxation and Spending Through the Taxpayer Bill of Rights

(TABOR) Discussion

Thursday July 20, 2017, 2:00 PM – 5:00 PM

Want to know what's in the Taxpayer's Bill of Rights?

Want to know what's in your state's TABOR? What are the similarities and differences?

How about talking over the political science of importing TABOR into your state? What adjustments might have to be made to conform to your constitution?

Heard allegations that you want addressed? Have doubts?

Want the latest information on the results of lawsuits and their meanings?

The TABOR Committee will explain how a Taxpayer Bill of Rights (TABOR) can protect taxpayers from runaway government spending and taxation. You are invited to learn about the history, scope, and impact of Colorado's TABOR from one of the storied first proponents of the Colorado initiative, former Colorado State Representative Penn Pfiffner. He and other TABOR leaders will explain and give one-on-one advice to you how your state can benefit from similar proposals along with the requisite strategies to enact the vision.

The Future of School Choice Has Arrived

A 2012 report by EdChoice called education savings accounts (ESA) the “most innovative school choice option on the market today,” and highlighted how ESAs are helping to fulfill Milton Friedman’s vision for school choice in the 21st century. At the time, only Arizona had implemented an ESA program, which was limited to only a few groups of students. Five years since that report was published, Arizona has expanded its program to provide universal eligibility by 2021, and other ESA programs have passed in Florida, Mississippi, Nevada, and Tennessee and have been proposed in dozens of other states as well.

One argument against programs allowing private-school choice is the question of their constitutionality, especially in states that have adopted Blaine amendments. States with these anti-Catholic provisions in their constitutions explicitly restrict public dollars from going to religious schools, thereby restricting the expansion of private-school choice.

All that could soon change, however. This week, in a monumental decision, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled 7-2 in favor of Trinity Lutheran Church’s right to apply for publicly available funds, despite the school’s religious affiliation and the state’s Blaine amendment, throwing into question the validity of Blaine amendments throughout the country.

In a press release announcing the Court’s decision, Heartland Senior Fellow Robert G. Holland said, “It might take one more Supreme Court decision to deliver a knockout blow to the bigoted anti-Catholic Blaine amendments of the 19th century, which still persist in two-thirds of state constitutions, and thereby to ensure that parents may use vouchers or ESAs in schools they deem best for their children.”

The ruling opens the door for many more states to implement private-school choice programs with less fear of state or federal courts shutting them down. A new Heartland Policy Brief by Policy Analyst Tim Benson discusses how universal education savings account programs offer the most comprehensive range of educational choices to parents; describes the five ESA programs currently in operation; and reviews possible state-level constitutional challenges to ESA programs.

Benson concludes, “ESA programs are not a silver-bullet solution to every problem plaguing the nation’s school system, but they certainly allow families much greater opportunities to meet each child’s unique education needs. The goal of public education today and in the years to come should be to allow all parents to choose which schools their children attend, require every school to compete for every student who walks through its doors, and make sure every child has the opportunity to attend a quality school.”

The studies found no examples of groundwater contamination due to hydraulic fracturing, commonly referred to as “fracking,” in Arkansas, Louisiana, and Texas. The studies add to the existing peer-reviewed evidence that shows hydraulic-fracturing processes do not pose a systemic impact on groundwater. Since 2010, at least 19 of these studies have been produced. These studies are reinforced by the Environmental Protection Agency’s own $29-million, six-year study of fracking’s impact on groundwater sources, which failed to find any systemic impact caused by the 110,000 oil and natural gas wells that have been in use across the country since 2011. Local Michigan School Board Gets on the Privatization Bus
In this article for School Reform News, Emma Vinton reports the Cedar Springs, Michigan School Board reduced annual spending by $350,000 to $400,000 per year, in addition to $610,000 in one-time revenue, by contracting with a private business to provide transportation services. Starting in August, Dean Transportation, a Lansing-based company, will operate the western Michigan school district’s bussing services. The company will hire the district’s 28 bus drivers and will be responsible for maintaining the buses. “The mission of public schools is to educate children, not to run a transportation company, a food company, or a cleaning company,” said Michael LaFaive, director of the Morey Fiscal Policy Initiative at the Mackinac Center for Public Policy, to Vinton. “These ancillary services are best performed by those whose specialty is in those fields. Linking health and wealth: How economic vitality can lead to healthier Ohioans

Dear Ryan,

In order to be healthy, we all need the opportunity to earn a sufficient income and live in affordable, safe housing. As providers, insurers and health departments increasingly are held accountable for improving population health, the need to address poverty and foster economic vitality becomes even more important. Policymakers often cite the need to improve our state's economic climate, however opinions on how to best accomplish this goal vary.

In order to be healthy, we all need the opportunity to earn a sufficient income and live in affordable, safe housing. As providers, insurers and health departments increasingly are held accountable for improving population health, the need to address poverty and foster economic vitality becomes even more important. Policymakers often cite the need to improve our state's economic climate, however opinions on how to best accomplish this goal vary.

This forum explores state policy options to improve health outcomes and health equity by increasing economic development, labor force participation and income mobility.

Maternal and Child Health Block Grant Public Comment Survey

The Federal Title V Maternal and Child Health (MCH) Program is the nation's oldest federal-state partnership aimed at promoting and improving the health, safety, and wellbeing of MCH populations. The MCH Block Grant provides a foundation for funding services to ensure the health of Ohio's mothers, women, children and youth, including children and youth with special health care needs, and their families.

The Ohio Department of Health, Office of Health Improvement and Wellness (OHIW), Bureau of Maternal, Child and Family Health, is charged with administering the Title V MCH Block Grant Program in Ohio. Part of that charge involves soliciting feedback annually regarding the strategies, objectives, activities and performance measures used to address the most critical needs for MCH populations across Ohio. We are currently in the second year of a 5-year cycle. The strategies submitted in this year's Block Grant application are the basis for our work over the 5-year period. We invite and encourage you to take the survey and share your comments with us.

Click here <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/BlockGrantSurvey> to access the survey. This survey is open for a 30 day public comment period.

Please share this information with your staff and stakeholders (local organizations, advisory groups, sub grantees, consumer groups, etc.) across the state. We ask that you let us know who you have forwarded this announcement to so we can track our outreach.

HPIO brief explores American Health Care Act decisions for states

The Health Policy Institute of Ohio has released its latest policy brief, "State policy options in the American Health Care Act."

Last month, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the American Health Care Act, a bill aimed at overhauling much of the Affordable Care Act. Although the AHCA is sometimes referred to as a bill to "repeal and replace" the ACA, it leaves many of the decisions to alter the 2010 health reform law in the hands of states.

Given the considerable flexibility in the AHCA for states, Ohio policymakers will have additional policy options available to them if the current bill is signed into law. The new HPIO publication highlights some of the areas in which Ohio policymakers will encounter new decision points.

In addition, the publication estimates changes to 2017 individual marketplace premiums had ACHA provisions been in place during the most-recent open enrollment period. County profiles with estimated premiums for various ages and incomes, as well as county-level marketplace enrollment data, are posted for a number of Ohio counties.

Healthy People 2020 Health Disparities Data Widget

The Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion (ODPHP) and the Office of Minority Health (OMH) are pleased to announce the release of a new HealthyPeople.gov data search function. The Health Disparities widget is a new way for you to access this health disparities information.

The new widget provides an easy way to find health disparities data related to the Healthy People 2020 objectives for the Leading Health Indicators (LHIs). LHIs are critical health issues that when addressed will help reduce the leading causes of death and preventable illnesses.

It's easy to embed the widget on your site and give your stakeholders easy access to the latest available disparities data. Once you've added the widget, there's no technical maintenance required. The content will update automatically with the latest available data.

The widget provides charts and graphs of disparities data at your fingertips. Use the widget to browse data by:

- Disparity type—including disability, education, income, location, race and ethnicity, and sex)
- Leading Health Indicator

Explore, use and share the widget to help inform issues related to health equity.

Are you hosting an event or want to inform people about your agency's program? If so, please forward information (including date, time, brief narrative, along with a contact person for inclusion within the weekly updates to Janet Greene (Janet.Greene@hhs.gov) or Corstella Henley (Corstella.Henley@hhs.gov) for review and consideration.

The Southeastern Health Equity Council (SHEC) released its Cultural Competency Resource Guide in fall 2015. This guide includes resources, trainers' information, institutions, and publications about cultural and linguistic competency that can be shared with the 10 regional health equity councils (RHECs), stakeholders, and partners to help address cultural barriers within healthcare systems. Additionally, this guide includes important terms for SHEC members to become familiar with as the council develops a common language around cultural competency.

To follow up on the release of the Cultural Competency Resource Guide, the SHEC is hosting a series of webinars in various regions of the country. The webinars include speakers from organizations focused on cultural competency. This webinar will discuss the overrepresentation of individuals with serious mental illness in the criminal justice system; the myriad economic, social, and cultural factors contributing to this reality; and program, practice and policy strategies that may prevent criminal justice involvement and strengthen community-based treatment and care. Upon completion of this webinar, participants will be able to accomplish the following from the specific organizational perspective:

1. Understand how the criminal justice system became the largest provider of mental and behavioral health services in the US and why such a model is unsustainable
 2. Understand the need for and implications of regulations, standards, policy, and law in protecting the public's mental health at the national and local level
 3. Understand the roles of diverse stakeholders in effective decision-making as it relates to corrections and reentry

July 31st - Mountain States RHEC's Native American Cultural Competency Webinar Series: Cultural Needs Assessments for Health for Providers Working with Tribal Communities

The Mountain States Regional Health Equity Council (RHEC) aims to end health disparities in Colorado, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, and Wyoming. One of its main priorities is to provide education and awareness of cultural and linguistic competency within the region. The RHEC is hosting a webinar training series on the history of tribes and treaties, utilization of Culturally and Linguistically Appropriate Services standards (National CLAS Standards) and cultural sensitivity when working with tribal communities, and the impact of cultural needs assessments. Upon completion of this webinar, the participants will be able to do the following from the specific tribal perspective:

- Describe the diversity of existing health care in Indian Country and explain the wide and varying differences in tribal health perspectives and cultures of health
- Share examples of best and promising practices of cultural competency aligned with the CLAS Standards
- Increase awareness of health equity challenges in tribal communities through the lens of health and cultural needs assessments

Complex Connections: Intimate Partner Violence and Women's Substance Abuse and Recovery

Tuesday, August 1, 2017, 2:00-3:30 P.M. EST

REGISTER HERE: <http://tinyurl.com/relationshipsmatter5>

Intimate partner violence (IPV) and women's substance abuse are often intertwined. Some women turn to substances to cope with the trauma of IPV, and others are coerced into using substances by an abusive partner. High rates of substance abuse among women seeking domestic violence (DV) services, along with high rates of IPV among women seeking substance abuse treatment, underscore the need for an integrated approach. However, DV programs are often unprepared to support women around substance abuse, just as behavioral health providers are often unprepared to identify and respond to IPV. This webinar focuses on ways behavioral health and DV service providers can work together to address the complex range of issues women face in trying to find safety, access recovery services, and heal from the trauma of IPV.

FIHET Equity in All Policies Webinar Series: Advancing Health Equity in Tribal Communities through Public Health Accreditation

You are invited to a webinar hosted by the Federal Interagency Health Equity Team

DATE AND TIME: August 24, 2017, 3:00 – 4:00 p.m. EDT

Tribal communities bear a disproportionate burden of social, economic, and/or environmental disadvantage relative to other racially or ethnically defined population groups. Therefore, ensuring that all American Indians and Alaska Natives (AI/ANs) achieve the highest level of health possible will require broad-spectrum action that goes beyond addressing individual determinants and disease management to include action to address such disadvantages. This webinar will highlight the work that has been done at the national level as well as within a tribal community to advance health equity and improve health outcomes for AI/ANs. Presenters will: Provide a background on the landscape of public health in Indian Country; Discuss the findings of an environmental scan on the state of public health accreditation and health equity within tribal communities; and Share one tribe's approach to using public health accreditation activities to achieve health equity within its community.

The 2017 Neighborhood Urban Community Garden-Orchard Walk and Total Man CDC Annual Fall Festival will be Saturday, September 9, 2017.

Santa Fe, Key Coalition and Oak Park urban community gardeners promote this annual walk to bring awareness to community garden- orchard sites within our neighborhoods and to encourage residents, families, neighbors and others to use these sites as walking destinations. This annual walk offers a chance to inspire walking within the neighborhood as a healthy physical activity for all ages and to allow local residents an opportunity to obtain fresh grown produce.

We would welcome companies, or organizations help in publicizing this upcoming Urban Neighborhood Community Garden -Orchard Walk. We are also asking for donations to help with the cost of printing street signs that indicates miles and directions, cases of water, PowerAde, Gatorade and /or snack bars for participating walkers.

Registered walkers will have a chance to visit and tour six-community gardens, four orchards and one aquaponic site. Registration Open for the 15th Annual Missouri Health Policy Summit, October 26-27, 2017

October 26-27, 2017 Hilton Garden Conference, Columbia, MO

How we produce and consume food has a bigger impact on American's well-being than any other human activity. The food industry is the largest sector of our economy and food touches everything from our health to the environment, climate change, economic inequality and the federal budget. The time is ripe to revisit our food system and identify ways to change our policies to improve health.

On another track, the New Administration and the 115th US Congress is planning and implementing changes in the priorities for national health policies.

This is a unique time in history to examine the intersection between these two policy arenas. This presents opportunities for wins in both policy arenas that assures access to healthful food, appropriate food marketing, chronic disease prevention, and reduced health care costs and premature deaths.

Summit Objectives:

Identify food and health policy intersections and opportunities for gains in both arenas to improve Missouri's economy and public health.

Examine the impact of local, state and federal food policy and environmental change on health, including Local projects and programs with demonstrated success in Missouri; Private sector actions making a difference in public health; State-level policy initiatives; and The Farm Bill, federal food policy and public health. Review the major shifts in food and nutrition patterns and the impact these have had on Missouri's rates of preventable, chronic disease. Share the most current information on health reform in 2017 and implications for Missouri.

Funding Opportunities

New FY 2017 Funding Opportunity Announcement

The Office of Minority Health (OMH) at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services administers cooperative agreement and grant programs to support projects that implement innovative models to improve minority health and reduce health disparities.

OMH has released a new competitive funding opportunity announcement (FOA) for which applications are now being accepted. Applications are due by August 1, 2017 at 5 PM ET.

Announcement Number: MP-CPI-17-004

Opportunity Title: Empowered Communities for a Healthier Nation Initiative

Estimated Funding Level: $5 million per one-year budget period, for a project period of three years

The Office of Minority Health (OMH) at the United States Department of Health and Human Services announces the availability of Fiscal Year 2017 cooperative agreement funds for the Empowered Communities for a Healthier Nation Initiative. The Empowered Communities for a Healthier Nation Initiative seeks to reduce significant health disparities impacting racial and ethnic minorities and/or disadvantaged populations through implementing evidence-based strategies with the greatest potential for impact.

The program is intended to serve residents in communities disproportionately impacted by the opioid epidemic; childhood/adolescent obesity; and serious mental illness.
